

DANGER LURKS IN CHAMOIS STRAINER

IF YOU MUST USE IT, BE SURE OPENING IN RESERVOIR

Garage men, beware! Autoists, at tention! There is death in the chamols strainer. Whenever you filter gasoline through chamois you are play ing hide and seek with one of the deadliest combinations known to man electricity and gasoline.

If your tank is under the seat, be areful when you fill it. If you are not, you will be as foolish as the man for a gas leak with natted candle.

Gassine and chamois do not get along They are "incompatibles." Let us assume that you are about to fill your tank. The funnel is in the to fill your tank. The thanker is in the famel. A chamois strainer is in the famel. The gasoline is turned on and as it pours through the chamois it generates static electricity. Static selectricity may be defined as electricity that is at rest. It is an agent wither of construction nor destruction as long as pothing is done to ion, so long as nothing is done to anleash it. Unleash it, knowingly or anknowingly, by brushing a clumsy fager against a natural law, and you have to deal with the most diabolical physical agent known, a force that lestroys with the quickness of light Static electricity, as we have said, is now in the funnel. The funnel is charged with it. So long as the funthe tank, thus creating a "ground," you are safe.

Now, for the sake of excitment, let us assume that you did not allow the funnel to rest inside the nozzle of your tank, as the gasoline sceped though the chamois skin. Either pursuit or someone cise held the funnel in midair, or it rested free of the sides of the tank. No "ground" was formed. formed have seen that gasoline, volatile substance, passing through chamois forms static electricity, which charges the funnel. When the amount of electricity is sufficient to produce a jump spark, that spark, following the inevitable law of electricity attraction, jumps to the nearest "ground," which is your tank. In doing so it must pass across the opening between the end of the funcial and the edge of the tank through which gasoline vapor is rising. Sud-denly there is a violent discharge, like that of lightning, which is, after all, a gigantic jump spark. All those in close relation are, as it were, struck by lightning.

for life through fiend of electricity

The moral to be derived from this article is this: DO NOT PUT GASO-LINE THROUGH CHAMOIS SKIN. But if you will insist on taking chances, be sure that you have a ground" on it, by seeing that the funnel touches the opening of the tank. Be doubly sure that you take this precaution. this precaution.

Fire department statistics of many cities show that an overwaelming per cent of auto fires are caused by using chamols with gasoline—a fatal combination.

We are indebted to Francis R. and Fred C. Henderson, truck manufac-turers of North Cambridge, Mass., who have furnished us with the information that prompts this article.
